North Central Alberta CFSA Board welcomes newest member

Florence Gladue from Slave Lake contributes her experiences to help enhance services to children and youth in our Region

North Central Alberta... An Elder, an educator, a social worker, a mentor and a role model for youth. These are just a few of the many experiences Florence Gladue brings to the Board of the North Central Alberta Child and Family Services Authority.

Gladue, who is originally from the First Nations Duncan Reserve, has received numerous commendations including the Alberta Centennial Medal Honouring Outstanding Albertans for her work with youth. She has also won Kookum of the Year in Slave Lake two years in a row. Her greatest achievement is her family of four children, six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren who are her pride and joy.

“We are very excited to have Florence join our team,” says North Central Alberta CFSA Board Co-Chair Brian Broughton. “She has so much to contribute to our efforts to help children, youth and families in our Region.”

Aboriginal Co-Chair Audrey Franklin shares Broughton’s sentiments, “Florence’s experiences are vast and she is clearly passionate about children and their well-being.”

Gladue is excited about her term on the Board and the opportunity to share her knowledge and skills in this new role.
